Background: As Chair of CAPAC, Rep. Honda is working with a coalition of civic groups informing the APIA community about President Bush's plans to reform the Social Security program. The APIA community is growing at an explosive rate, with the number of Asians in the US expected to triple over the next half-century. In Rep. Honda's home state of California, for instance, the APIA population already comprises 11 percent of the general population, and grew 34 percent in the past decade from 2.8 million to 3.8 million. As a rapidly growing community, APIAs need the facts about Social Security reform to make informed decisions about this critical social insurance program.
